Partial Government Shutdown Likely to Continue into Tuesday

The Senate passed compromise government funding legislation (H.R. 7148) on Friday in a bipartisan 71-29 vote. The deal struck between President Donald Trump and Senate Democrats includes Defense, Financial Services, Labor-Health and Human Services-Education, National Security-State, and Transportation-Housing and Urban Development funding through September 30, along with funding for the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) through February 13. The agreement provides lawmakers with additional time to negotiate reforms to the DHS bill in light of recent events in Minneapolis involving Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE).

The package contains nearly $117 billion in discretionary funding for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), in line with fiscal year (FY) 2025 funding levels and rejecting the deeper cuts to HHS proposed by the President's budget request. The legislation also includes provisions to reform the pharmacy benefit manager industry and extensions of key health care programs, such as the Medicare dependent hospital program, Medicare telehealth flexibilities, the Acute Hospital Care at Home waiver, and virtual cardiopulmonary rehabilitation services. The Senate package also contains approximately $16 billion in congressionally directed spending, with health care related earmarks set to receive $986 million.

While the deal averts a lengthy government shutdown, a partial shutdown did go into effect early Saturday morning. The House of Representatives will take up the spending package when it returns to session on Monday, but House Democrats informed GOP leadership over the weekend that they will not help fast-track passage of the funding package to reopen the government. As a result, passage of the package through regular order is not expected until Tuesday at the earliest.

Bipartisan Talks on ACA Tax Credits Stall

Sens. Bernie Moreno (R-Ohio) and Susan Collins (R-Maine) have presented Democrats with their “best and final offer” to extend and modify the Affordable Care Act’s (ACA) enhanced advance premium tax credits. Sens. Moreno and Collins have led the recent bipartisan negotiations, featuring roughly a dozen other senators, to extend the enhanced subsidies that expired at the end of 2025. The proposal pitched by Moreno and Collins would extend the tax credits for three years, with the first year continuing along the status quo; the credits would then be phased out while providing for an on-ramp to the expansion of a health savings account option during the second and third year. The proposal also includes an across-the-board minimum $5 premium, 700% federal poverty level income cap on eligibility, and funding for cost-sharing reduction payments. It also proposes audits to ensure compliance with the Hyde Amendment, restricting the use of federal dollars for abortion services, and the creation of new fines for insurers that deliberately enroll unqualified individuals. Sen. Angus King (I-Maine), who has helped negotiate on behalf of Democrats, has responded that the proposal does not represent a bipartisan deal and suggested a return to a full, two-year enhanced tax credit extension. Sen. Jeanne Shaheen (D-N.H.), another Democratic negotiator, has also raised concerns about the plan’s failure to recognize that the Hyde Amendment already applies to the ACA market.

HELP Republicans Launch Fraud Task Force

Senate Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions (HELP) Committee Chair Bill Cassidy, MD (R-La.) and Republican members of the panel Ashley Moody (Fla.), Roger Marshall, M.D. (Kan.), Tommy Tuberville (Ala.), Jon Husted (Ohio), Markwayne Mullin (Okla.), and Tim Scott (S.C.) have announced the formation of a task force to eliminate fraud in federal spending. The new group’s anti-fraud efforts will be based on subject matter, with Sens. Moody and Marshall leading the work in the health care space. The launch of the task force follows reports of fraud and abuse related to federal child care funding in Minnesota, as well as the committee’s creation of an online portal for Americans to report fraud involving taxpayer dollars.

Surgeon General Nomination Hearing Expected Later This Month

The Senate HELP Committee will reportedly hold a confirmation hearing for U.S. Surgeon General nominee Casey Means, on February 25. The hearing was originally scheduled for last November but was postponed due to the nominee’s pregnancy. Means is a medical doctor, wellness influencer, and co-founder of the bio wearables and health-tracking company Levels. She graduated medical school but dropped out of her surgical residency in her fifth year, opting to open a functional medicine practice. Means was tapped for the position of surgeon general last May after the White House withdrew the nomination of former Fox News contributor Janette Nesheiwat.

Florida Rep. Buchanan to Retire After Two Decades in Congress

Rep. Vern Buchanan (R-Fla.), 74, has announced that he will not seek reelection this year. Rep. Buchanan has served in the House of Representatives for 20 years. He currently serves as the vice chair of the House Ways and Means Committee and as the chair of its Subcommittee on Health.
